

Overview

The slightly shorter and lower of the Kanchenjunga treks, Kanchenjunga South Base Camp Trek, is hardly less stunning than the others. The path climbs through lush, ancient forests teeming with Spanish mosses before reaching the desolate mountain country of the Yalung Glacier, just below the south face of Kanchenjunga (8,586 meters/28,169 feet) – the third largest mountain in the world. In fact, before it was discovered that Everest is the highest mountain in the world, Kanchenjunga was said to be the tallest.

With over 15,00 meters of altitude change, you are in for a bit of a challenge. However, the hard work pays off and you will have one of the best times of your life. Pass through remote, charming Limbu villages that see few trekkers. It is possible to walk for days without seeing another foreigner. Because of this, you will be able to develop more personal relationships and even friendships with the Rai, Limbu, and Tibetan villagers, who show you their great hospitality. If you have the interest, try some cups of Tongba, locally made hot millet wine. After the first cup is finished, you'll get your cup filled and refilled until your heart's content.

These ethnic groups speak their own dialect and many aspects of their culture differ from those of the Nepali people in the middle hills and Terai region. You will find this fascinating to learn about. In terms of the wildlife of the trek, we might run into the Himalayan Tahr, Himalayan black bear, musk deer, and perhaps the elusive Red Panda. Oh, and the legend of the Yeti lives in these areas, so keep your eyes and ears peeled.

Immerse yourself in the mystique of the mountains. Listen to nothing but the blowing wind and the sound of your foot and the trail meeting each other. Reach Yalung Glacier and enjoy a heart-stopping view of the south face of Kanchenjunga, which takes up nearly your entire view. From here, descend slowly back to Suketar, admiring the beauty throughout.

We have listed this trek as a 'camping trek' because accommodations/general facilities on this trek are limited. During the main tourism months, most teahouses are open. It is up to you whether you would rather camp or stay in a teahouse. We will discuss these logistics with you.

NOTE: If you would like to skip the night bus and fly to Biratnagar and take a shorter drive to Lalikharka, we can arrange this for an additional cost.

Trekking is possible throughout the year, but Spring (March to May) and Autumn (September to November) provide the best weather. During the Spring, there is a bit more color and the rhododendrons are blooming, and in the Autumn months, the skies are generally clearer. Depending on the time of the year that you make the trek, teahouses may not be open. We will give you the details before you book your trek.

The Kanchenjunga South Base Camp Trek requires moderate fitness and acclimatization to avoid acute mountain sickness. Breeze Adventure arranges the trek with complete management. Please, feel free to contact us for more detailed information.
